testified in his own behalf to-day in Fitzsimmons's suit for possession of that $10,000 check, and his denials of the charges of creekedness were prompt and vigorous. The proceedings opened with Lynch on the stand for further cross-examination, but Attorney Kowelsky was unable to bring in any damaging admissions and the witness soon gave way to the sailor, who formally identified the articles of agreement signed by himself and Fitzsimmons, and then Gen. Barnes questioned him along the lines of Trainer Smith's testi-

Sharkey denied having any interest whatever in the National A. C., or that he had advanced that organization $2,500 or any other sum. The first he heard of Earp was when he saw his name in the papers before he went to Sausalito to see Fitzsimmons. He did not tell Smith that if he (Sharkey) could get Earp for referee he would be all right, or that there would be good money in it for the right referee. Nor did he ever state that he would refuse to agree to any referee in advance, and the club would then name any man he would suggest. The sailor was positive that he had never talked to Lynch or anybody else about Earp. He went into the ring with no thought but to win a fair fight. Earp asked him to remove the bandages from his hands, but he did not say it would be all

"No, sir, I put my hands on my groin from the pair."

Sharkey was then subjected to a cross-examination by Kowalsky.

Danny Needham, Sharkey's trainer, was the next witness. His story was a general debial of what Smith and Allen had said about the referee and about the suspicious circumstances in the dressing room and in Sharkey's room in the hotel.

William Greer Harrison explained the difference between a prize fight and a glove contest. He saw the Sharkey-Fitzsimmons contest and saw no foul.

Resaw the Sauces and Sauces as no foul.

L. R. Fulda, formerly President of the Callfornia A. C., agreed with Harrison as to the distinction between a glove contest and a prize fight. He was not at the Sharkey-Fitzsimmons contest. He said the referee's decision was Walter Watson, boxing instructor of the Olympic Club, said he was looking at the eighth round and did not see a foul blow.

Referee Wyatt Earp was then called. He testified that he was in the Baldwin Hotel about 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the fight, when he was first asked to referee the contest by Groom, Gibbs, and some one clse. He did not know Lynch except to speak to him, and had not spoken to him half a dozen times in he life.

As to the bandages on Sharkey's hands, Earp said he told Sharkey to take them off on a second protest from Julian. Earp's description of the eighth round was in his own language as follows:

"Fitzsimmons drove Sharkey to his corner and struck him a blow on the breast. Sharkey came again and Fitzsimmons tried to uppercut him, and struck him in the groin. As he went back he uppercut him on the chin, He did not fall backwards, but went down on his knees and placed his hands on the place he was hit. Nesdham came up and asked if I saw the foul, and I said:

'That's all right: I see it.' I walked over and gave my decision. I decided that Mr. Sharkey had won on a foul."

this.

Judge Sanderson cautioned him to answer the questions.

Earp was asked if he had a revolver on him, and in reply offered to be searched by a deputy Sheriff. The court then adjourned.

Improvements for the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards of the city of New York, for an apprepriation to enable him to construct a macuslamited strip on each side of Jerome avenue, from the new Central avenue bridge, north, to the city line at Yonkers.

As this would give to the wheelmen of the city below the Harlem River a fine and direct road to reach Westchester county, through Van Courtlandt Park, and a good wheeling roadway that is much needed, as the roads in the upper wards are not in cycling condition, it is urged on you to send a representative to appear at the meeting to show that such request for improving Jerome avenue is not for the benefit of the residents of the north side of the city only, but for the entire wheeling population of Manhattan Island. As this is of great importance, do not fail to be represented.

PENNSYLVANIA AFTER HONORS. Truck and Field Men and Crew Candidates Start In to Trais.

Following up their good work in other branches of sport, the University of Pennsylvania students propose making a bold bid for the intercollegiate track and field honors next May. A covered track has been constructed at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, and Trainer Murphy has the athletic candidates in steady work. To accommodate the jumpers and pole vaulters, To accommodate the jumpers and pole valiters, a platform has been provided. This is covered deeply with packed sawdust, and makes an excellent substitute for the regular jumping plant. Murphy says there is no reason why Pennsylvania's team for next year should not surpass all previous ones. The material is plenty and excellent, and it only remains to put it into the best possible shape. This he has already started in to do.

In to do.

Particular attention is being paid to the de-velopment of hurdlers, which has always been velopment of hurdlers, which has always been a weak department at the university. Silizer, Schrack, Leslie, and Capt. Winsor are showing apiltude for the game, and take spins over the obstacles daily. The sprinting division promises to be formidable, as Hodman, Hillary, Blackburn, and Judd are available. There is also a strong array of middle and long distance runners, including George Orion, Grant, Mechling, Shedjie, Steele, Steele, Lane, Quickail, and Price. Six promising candidates are in training for the walk. Woodruff is showing marked improvement with the hammer and alsot, and half a dozen others are rounding up well.

The coarsmen promise to rival the other athletes in activity. The coaching process was a good deal simplified by the holding of the interclass and department races in the fail, and by Jan. I the committee, it is expected, will be prepared to enroll candidates for the three regular crews, the 'varsity, 'varsity freshmen, and college frashmen. The men will have the exclusive use of the rowing quarters as well as the undivided attention of Coach Ellis Ward for some months, and although class crews may organize in the spring they will not be allowed to encroach on the special facilities provided for the regular candidates.

Cold Weather Causes a Postponement at

Lakewood. The northeast wind, the only cold producer at Lakewood that the pine woods cannot shield the residents from, and the absence of several of the women entered, caused a postponement yeserday of the women's match for the cup presented by Arthur B. Claffin, which was to formally open the new links of the Ocean County Hunt and Country Club. The play will now begin on Thursday, with the first men's handicap for the cup put up by James Converse. The

The Crescent course will be agin near the gate of the Bay Ridge grounds, at Eighty-fifth street and First avenue, and will be nearly two miles long. Should December continue an open month the links may be ready by Jan. 1.

A number of the players eligible have sent notice of their intention to start in the handicap on Dec. 26 at Van Cortlandt Park. Andrew Bell, in mailing his entry, suggests that the match be open to all, as he thinks that there are plenty of players who did not enter on Nov. 28 who would like to try in the handicap. It would seem hard to rate the newcomers, however, unless they would consent to go from scratch. The Van Cortlandt Park links should be in fine order, unless the present cold spell proves of long duration and very severe for the contest.

Driving Club Officials Meet.

The newly elected Executive Committee o the Driving Club of New York held an informal meeting at the Hotel Lincoln last night. Those present were A. B. Gwathmey, W. G. Leland, Ed Martens, Capt. C. H. McDonald, Ed S. Hedges, Alexander Newburger, J. H. Rogan, and Luke Burke. Owing to the absence of President James Butler, Frederick Steinway. and A. Garside, the committee was not organized and the election of officers was postponed until next Monday. It was said yesterday that President Butler had declined to serve another term. The members of the Executive Committee who attended the meeting last night discussed the racing outlook for 1897, and all were in favor of early action in the matter of selecting dates and announcing the stake programme. The sentiment was in favor of holding two meetings next year, one in June and another in September. A larger series of stakes than was offered last year will probably be opened for each meeting. For the Grand Circuit fail meeting, a 2:08 class for pacers and a 2:11 class for trotters will be the features of the stake programme. and A. Garside, the committee was not organized

CHICAGO, Dec. 15,-J. I. Winston of Washingten, Ind., and G. Roll of Blue Island, Ill., ontested in a 100 live-bird shoot at Watson Park to-day. Winston won by a score of D1 to 84. Owing to a cold, damp atmosphere, unaccompanied by wind, the birds were somewhat tupid. George A. Mosher of Syracuse challenged the winner, and the shoot will probably be held at Cleveland in a few days. A tenbird sweepstakes followed immediately after the big match, the result being as follows: Dr. Shaw, 9; Dr. Carver, 10; R. Kuss, 9; F. Gilbert, 10; Ed Steck, 10; O. Searles, 8; T. Heikes, 9.
